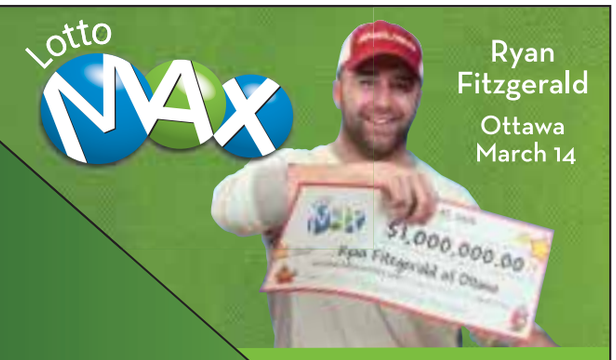
LONDON metro®



$1 MILLION WINNER

NEWS WORTH SHARING.

KILL YOUR DARLINGS, NOT YOUR LOVERS

WILL 'ONLY LOVERS LEFT ALIVE' WRESTLE VAMPIRE GENRE FROM TWILIGHT FANS? PAGE 11

metro AR USE METRO AR TO SEE MORE

Friend request reunites T.O. woman with family's past

London police dispatcher uses Facebook to return priceless family photos PAGE 2

'The horror ... the horror ...'

Shock Stock 2014, a celebration of horror, drive-in and cult movies, features off-site concert, Evil Dead: The Musical , and stars from The Devil's Rejects PAGE 5

Knights lose way against the Storm

London club loses series to Guelph, must now take unheralded route to championship as Memorial Cup hosts PAGE 16

HE SHOOTS, HE SCORES

London's Dave Sandford has made a name for himself in the world of sports photography. Closing in on 2,000 NHL games, he's been noticed by Sports Illustrated, tackled the Olympics and that's just the start. Story on page 4. COURTESY DAVE SANDFORD

Hey, London — vote: Volunteers

londonvotes.ca.
Website includes special section with information for first-time voters

Ballots cast

104,593

Number of Londoners who voted in the 2010 municipal election. It was 39.91 per cent of the population.

London Votes, these volunteers are saying, and they want to prove themselves right.

Last time out, at the 2010 municipal election, just less than 40 per cent of Londoners voted. This year, a group of volunteers is out to change that, and encourage more people to make their opinions known on Oct. 27. They've already registered a domain name: londonvotes.ca. It has no content so far, but there's plenty to come.

"The idea is to make a place with all the information you need, and make it easy to access and easy to understand," said Laura Robinson, one of the leaders of the project. "We want to have a site that'll let you put in your postal address, and it'll tell you want ward you live in."

And London Votes, when complete, will do more, said Robinson, 23, who's a health sciences student at Western University and a member of the group Women and Politics.

She and her fellow volunteers hope to include third-party reviews of the wards, issues and candidates. They also want to have directions to polling stations.

Crucially, there will be a special section for first-time voters, to make sure they have the information they need.

"We're hoping to get it up and running by the summer," Robinson said, "so we can show people that it exists, and maybe get to some summer festivals where there are big crowds."

Those other volunteers include socially conscious and creative people like Sean Adamson, Gavin Blair and Damon Muma of digital agency rtraction, and Eric Shepperd, a leading light in Occupy London who had originally planned to run for mayor.

Also supporting the idea is community activist Lincoln McCardle, who thinks that the need to vote is one issue that everyone, wherever they are on the political spectrum, can agree on. McCardle had the idea of asking people to "vow to vote," similar to the pledge to end bullying, and his concept is being folded into London Votes.

"Everything starts with one person with one vote," he said.

MIKE DONACHIE/METRO

"Since starting the Bookkeeping Certificate program, I have advanced within my company and still continue to take courses to broaden my knowledge."
Lynsai | Bookkeeping Certificate Student
FANSHAWE
REGISTER TODAY!
FANSHAWEC.CA/CE
519-452-4444
CONTINUE YOUR CAREER DEVELOPMENT

NEWS 1

Family memories make their way home

Long search. London police dispatcher reunites Toronto woman with pictures from the past

SCOTT TAYLOR
scott.taylor@metronews.ca

The story began in 1997 when a London police dispatcher asked if she could save a box of old family photos from the incinerator.

They weren't her family's photos, but London's Victoria Kelly knew they must have meant a lot to someone.

They'd been turned into police after a man moved into a London home and discovered them in the attic. After no one claimed them, they were on the cusp of being destroyed when Kelly got involved.

Thus began her odyssey that ended last month when the black-and-white photos found their way home.

"They were professionally done," Kelly said. "There was an album of 'My first trip to Europe' from the 1940s, wedding pictures and just beautiful photos of the family."

Kelly, a photographer with a keen interest in genealogy herself, eventually posted the pictures on Facebook and others got involved in the online chase.

At midnight about a month ago, Kelly's daughter excitedly told her she had to go on Facebook.

"She said they found me. I said who found me? I came running down, and the lady was still on (Facebook)," Kelly said. "Two weeks later we went down and gave her the photos."

Heather Wilson of Toronto said she was ecstatic and shocked to be reunited with the memories.

"I got an email from Ancestry.ca saying someone is looking for me and at the bottom was a Facebook link. So I went on Facebook and there were my mom and dad's wedding pictures," Wilson said.

"My mom passed away in 2003, so we thought all her stuff had been returned to us," she said. "I couldn't believe that this woman had kept this stuff for so long and had tried to find us all that time."

Quoted

"I couldn't believe that this woman had kept this stuff for so long and had tried to find us all that time."

Heather Wilson, Toronto woman reunited with family pictures thanks to a London police dispatcher

After trying to connect with the owners of photos left at London police headquarters more than a decade ago, Facebook turned out to be a key tool in Victoria Kelly's search for the rightful owner. SCOTT TAYLOR/METRO

Effects of harsh winter will last, say Western experts

The ecological impact of the extreme winter could continue through the summer, researchers at Western University are warning.

In a review of ecological impacts on climate change, Brent Sinclair from Western's faculty of science, along with collaborators at Western and the University of Florida, investigated how winter conditions may affect summer health of things ranging from hibernating mammals to soil microbes.

Sinclair, who has been fielding calls from academics, concerned citizens and the media about the possible effects of a long, cold winter for months, said it's still too early to tell exactly how life will change, but it will change.

According to Sinclair, "A long, cold winter means that many organisms, such as birds, will have burned more energy than during a normal winter. Some insects will have been killed by the extreme low temperatures, while others will have saved more energy and will actually have increased their survival rates."

Most animals will survive a harsh winter, research shows, but growth and reproduction in the summer could be affected.

As for insects like mosquitoes and emerald ash borers, Sinclair says most are extremely well-adapted to low temperatures and insects native to Canada most likely survived the cold winter.

METRO

Baseline Road. Three people charged in booze delivery holdup

Three people were arrested Saturday night after what police described as the knife-point robbery of a person delivering alcohol.

Police said the victim was in the area of 112 Baseline Rd. W. at about 9:35 p.m. when he was approached by two men and a woman.

One of the men, his face covered with a bandana, brandished a knife and demanded that the victim give him the booze he was carrying.

The victim complied and went into a nearby building to call police.

Officers used a police dog to search for the trio and found them a short distance away.

Jordan Ireland, 22, Joshawa Green, 25, and Christine Bishop, 24, all of London, are charged with one count each of armed robbery.

Ireland faces additional charges, including carrying a concealed weapon and wearing a disguise.

METRO

A blank canvas in the middle of city gets an artist's touch

Artist Tracy Root works on the mural that's transforming the walkway between the London Convention Centre and the Hilton. MIKE DONACHIE/METRO

New mural. Artist creating a welcome for visitors

MIKE DONACHIE
mike.donachie@metronews.ca

There's been an extra sight to see for visitors to the Forest City over the last few days.

People joining events at the London Convention Centre have been treated to an artist at work, as Tracy Root creates a striking scene on the wall of the walkway between the centre and the Hilton London.

"It's a contemporary landscape," Root explained. "I wanted to get something that would be bright and appeal to a wide range of people that come through here."

The creation is happening because of a partnership between the centre and the London Arts Council, and it's the convention centre's first mural. It began last week and will take about two months, Root said.

As for exactly what it will be, we'll have to wait and see.

Root's sketches hint at forests, figures and islands, and she's already painting waves. The figure of a woman at one end of the painting will, with her gaze, lead viewers down the picture, she said.

It's a space seen by many people as they arrive from the hotel across King Street and its indoor access to the TD towers.

The wall was simply blank when the idea of a mural came up, said Lori Da Silva, general manager of the London Convention Centre.

"We wanted to start creating experiences, and recognized that, when people come in for a convention or a conference, we want to enhance the experience with the physical building," she said. "Our board a couple of years ago started talking about public art and how we could enhance the arts community, and we felt this was a good avenue to go down."

Suspect sought. Camera at window leads police to investigate near Western

A person with a camera has caused concern in a residential area near Western University.

Police are investigating an April 7 incident that happened east of Richmond Street between Epworth Avenue and Raymond Avenue. It follows a similar incident on Oct. 29, and both happened between 10 p.m. and midnight, police said.

Witnesses reported seeing a hand outside their window, holding what appeared to be a camera or another recording device. It was described as dark grey, with a flip-out viewfinder.

The windows involved are high enough, cops said, that someone would need to stand on something to reach them.

Police are asking for anyone with information to call them at 519-661-5670 and are warning people to think about security as the weather gets warmer.

People should ensure that window coverings are drawn and windows and doors are locked at night, police said. METRO

Honouring former minister

Flag lowered for Jim Flaherty outside London City Hall

The city has lowered the Canadian flag at city hall to half-mast to mark the passing of former federal minister Jim Flaherty.

Flaherty, who was finance minister from 2006 until his retirement from politics last month, died Thursday at the age of 64.

A book of condolences has also been placed in the lobby of city hall and people are being invited to sign it. The book will be available from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on weekdays through Flaherty's funeral on Wednesday. METRO

Unicyclist looking for recruits

Brian MacKenzie says you're never too old — or young — to learn to roll on one wheel. He's looking to teach people of all ages the joy a unicycle can bring. SCOTT TAYLOR/METRO

It could be a great adventure, if you don't bruise your pride — and a few other things — first.

The guy who regularly makes it onto Twitter and YouTube for rolling around London on a unicycle while dressed as a Star Wars Stormtrooper is looking for a few good men and women to join him.

Brian MacKenzie is now offering lessons to those interested in learning the joy of one wheel. He's posted all the details at roundcirclemedia.com.

MacKenzie first made news a little more than a year ago, when he was spotted on his unicycle dressed in full Star Wars regalia. Since then, he's attended a number of events in costume and produced an extreme unicycling DVD.

And for those who believe they're too old to try something like this, MacKenzie was 26 when he decided to switch from mountain biking to unicycling, because he saw what could be done in the same rugged environment on a unicycle.

Quoted

"It's a fantastic ice breaker."

Brian MacKenzie, on riding a unicycle.

"I saw a unicyclist on Ripley's Believe It or Not doing the same aggressive things I was doing on my bike and so I ordered one to see if I could do it, too," he said. "I never rode a bike again."

He's taught people of all ages — from eight to 55 — and said 10 lessons usually do the trick.

"I fall up the stairs as much as the next guy. I don't have any kind of super balance or anything," he said. "You train your body to react and it comes naturally."

MacKenzie relates it to his son learning to sit upright when he was six months old.

"He was twitching to keep his balance. It's just natural. Someone who's 30 or what ever will say they can't do it because they don't have the balance, but everyone can do it." SCOTT TAYLOR/METRO

London photog always has the NHL in his sights

He shoots, he scores accolades. Dave Sandford has made a name for himself in the world of sports photography

DAVE LANGFORD
dave.langford@metronews.ca

He's been to 14 Stanley Cup finals, 12 NHL all-star games, 16 NHL Awards ceremonies and 16 NHL Entry Drafts.

And this year alone, he was at four of the six NHL outdoor games.

Throw in two Olympics, two World Series, three Canadian Open golf championships and the Wakeboard World Series Tour.

Add it all up and you get a taste of the life of Dave Sandford, one of Canada's most prominent sports photographers who just happens to call London home.

"At 15 or 16, I realized I wasn't going to be an NHL player, so I really wanted to do something that would involve me with hockey and sports. So that's when I kind of channelled everything I could in that direction," Sandford, now 40, said in an interview with Metro.

Sandford owned his first camera when he was nine, and continued his interest in photography at John Paul II high school, where "if I wasn't playing a sport, I photographed whatever I could."

Then it was on to Ryerson University and the photography program, where he managed to shoot 125 NHL games before he graduated. It helped that the school and his residence were both within blocks of Maple Leaf Gardens.

But after graduation, he was entering the working world as a photographer, but without a job.

"I remember panicking and that panic only lasted two days, maybe," Sandford said.

He was hired to shoot for the Hockey Hall of Fame and that relationship continues to this day. At the end of that first hockey season, the NHL came calling, eager to start its own photo agency.

"And here I am 17 years (and close to 2,000 NHL games) later," Sandford said.

He's had a long series of big-event coverage and there are many, many highlights.

"If you had to pick a single event as far as where all the eyes of our country were on, it had to be that game in Vancouver where Canada beat the U.S. and (Sidney Crosby) got the golden goal," he said. "I mean that's probably as big as it gets being a Canadian."

Next to the Olympics and the Stanley Cup finals, the outdoor games are also near and dear to his shooting finger.

"Because they're different. You can have a guy standing there doing nothing but because he's got black-out under his eyes and snowflakes are falling, it makes a beautiful photo," Sandford said. "It's just a different atmosphere."

Sandford's work has now appeared in Sports Illustrated close to 125 times, with the first of those not exactly on the highlight reel.

"The (former World Hockey Association) used to use blue pucks. So it was a photo of a blue WHA puck that they ran and it literally was the size of a dime. The photo credit was two pages over and my name was spelled incorrectly."

That doesn't happen any more.

See some of his work at Davesandfordphotos.com.

On the web

Check out more of Dave Sandford's photos at metronews.ca.

This Dave Sandford photo of the mask flying off the head of former Toronto Maple Leafs goalie Glenn Healey earned inclusion in the Sports Illustrated photos of the year in 2000. COURTESY DAVE SANDFORD/HOCKEY HALL OF FAME

For the love of the great outdoors

"Because they're different. You can have a guy standing there doing nothing but because he's got black-out under his eyes and snowflakes are falling, it makes a beautiful photo."

Dave Sandford, on why he enjoys shooting outdoor games.

From the arenas ...

2,000

Dave Sandford has shot close to 2,000 NHL games.

... to the pages

125

Sandford's work has appeared in Sports Illustrated close to 125 times.

And in the off-season ... it's wakeboarding time!

When the ice melts, Dave Sandford also has a passion for the water-filled lakes left behind.

"I've always been involved with water sports. I started to water-ski when I was four. That's how I always spent my spare time. On the boat or in the water," he said.

And the prime inland water for the Sandford family is in Buckhorn Lake, north of Peterborough.

Unfortunately, Sandford has been "blessed with bad knees," resulting in five surgeries to date and water-skiing seemed to work well in the summers. Many of his friends tried to talk him into wakeboarding.

"Finally gave in to that in 2008 and I tried it for the first time ever. It was familiar since I'd been around it, so I picked it up pretty quickly."

It quickly became his favourite work — and play — thing to do "whether it's wakeboarding myself or shooting it or just whatever involvement there is with it," he said.

His timing could not have been more perfect, as the sport is booming.

He is now contributing photographer to three wakeboarding magazines and a "handful" of the companies involved in the sport.

DAVE LANGFORD/METRO

Dave Sandford's favourite pastime has turned into a lucrative secondary business. Here, world women's champion wakeboarder Dallas Friday does her thing at Lake Holden in Orlando, Fla. COURTESY DAVE SANDFORD

Darren Hutchings, left, and Nathan Hawkins, of Kitchener-based Post-Life Productions, hang out with a few of their favourite things Sunday during Shock Stock 2014 at Centennial Hall. SCOTT TAYLOR/METRO

‘All the people and all the horror’

What a scream. Horror fans fill Centennial Hall for Shock Stock

SCOTT TAYLOR
scott.taylor@metronews.ca

Shock Stock 2014 was a bloody good time, even if one of the organizers could barely speak by the end of London’s three-day homage to horror.

James Bialkowski, who co-founded the event four years ago with Jake Windatt, said his voice was on its last legs Sunday afternoon, but he was still able to choke out a few words to recap the fun.

“We had more people come in from out of town, we sold out the (Station Park Inn) hotel, and we did an off-site concert, which was a huge success,” he said.

Bialkowski was referring to Evil Dead: The Musical, which played at The Grand Theatre.

“It was a mess. The stage was full of blood everywhere. It was great,” he said.

The fest is a celebration of horror, drive-in and cult movies and it came with a number of stars of the genre’s best-known flicks, including The Devil’s Rejects and The Human Centipede.

One fan, who just gave her first name as Vanessa, said she was there “for all the people and all the horror. They show movies, they have all this cool stuff and they have celebrities. It’s really grown over the years.”

She said the event isn’t something one thinks of when thinking of London.

“It’s one-of-a-kind and it’s different,” she said. “People come out of the woodwork.”

Bialkowski confirmed Shock Stock’s return in 2015.

Ontario wants bigger bang for public buck

The Liberal government has created an advisory panel to find ways of getting more value out of key public assets such as the Liquor Control Board, Ontario Power Generation and Hydro One.

TD Bank president and CEO Ed Clark will lead the panel that will look at ways to get better returns for taxpayers out of “complex” government assets, Finance Minister Charles Sousa said.

“I’m not going to preclude what their recommendations will be, but they’re going to assess what’s the best use of those assets, and who should own them,” said Sousa.

The hole

$11.3B

Deficit faced by the Ontario government

“We want to maintain the integrity of those assets and the ownership for the public good, but we’ve got to make certain it is for the public good.”

The panel will consider measures such as corporate mergers, acquisitions, growth strategies, governance and public-private partnerships, added Sousa.

“The council will give preference to continued government ownership of all core strategic assets,” he said.

Ontario has a range of other assets — including shares in General Motors purchased during the recession, a large real estate portfolio and Crown corporations — that the province can sell when the time is right, added Sousa.

The cash-strapped government will sell the headquarters of the LCBO and will consider selling the downtown OPG building as it tries to raise needed money. THE CANADIAN PRESS

THE TAX DEADLINE IS ALMOST HERE. YOU SHOULD BE TOO.

The April 30th tax deadline is fast approaching. So come in today and let our tax professionals get you the most money back, guaranteed.*

We make taxes painle$$

H&R BLOCK®

hrblock.ca 1.800.HRBLOCK

*If H&R Block makes any error in the preparation of your tax return that costs you any interest or penalties due to additional taxes due, although we do not assume the liability for the additional taxes, we will reimburse you for the interest and penalties.

St. Julian Park. Cops search for suspect in sex assault of woman

London police are investigating after a woman was sexually assaulted in St. Julian Park.

An appeal for information was issued on Friday, although the assault took place at about 2 a.m. on April 6.

Police said that "an adult female sex-trade worker" met a man in the area of Hamilton Road and St. Julian Street and was driven to St. Julian Park. It was there police say she was sexually assaulted while inside the man's vehicle. She had minor injuries, police said.

The suspect is described as possibly in his 30s and of average build. He was of Middle Eastern descent and had a strong accent, longer-length dark curly hair and an unkempt beard. He's also been described as a smoker.

At the time of the offence, the suspect was wearing black pants, a light-coloured sweatshirt and a black tuque.

The vehicle involved is described as an older-model (possibly mid-1990s) four-door sedan with a white or light-colour exterior and a darker colour trim on its lower portion. The interior was a light colour, possibly a tan, vinyl material.

Anyone with any information is being asked to get in contact with the police at 519-661-5670.

METRO

City of London solid-waste technician Jane Kittmer is among those who has been fielding questions and providing information at the CityGreen display. MIKE DONACHIE/METRO

City's talking green, and we're all ears

Now you're talking. Hundreds hear about environmental initiatives as staff take one-on-one approach to messaging

MIKE DONACHIE
mike.donachie@metronews.ca

There's no substitute for a good chat, the city's recycling chief says, and about 1,000 people seem to agree with him.

For four weeks, Londoners have been visiting CityGreen, the display of green messages and public services set up at Citi Plaza, near the Wellington Street entrance to the mall.

And there's been no shortage of interest in the changing displays, with 200 to 300 people stopping by each week to talk to city staff, said Jay Stanford, the city's director of environment, fleet and solid waste.

"It's most definitely been successful," he said. "It's been worth our staff time. There are times when it's quiet but there are times when you're getting that engagement.

"Sometimes, these days, you can have too much email and social engagement. Sometimes talking one-on-one is the best way to understand concerns and even resolve a few issues."

CityGreen has been using technology, activities and even props — like a toilet with a transparent system of pipework — to teach people about environmental initiatives.

Right now it's all about recycling and composting, but by midweek it will switch to community cleanups and related issues.

CityGreen will be there until the end of April, Stanford said, and will be reviewed. It could be repeated in a different location, and staff will again be out at public events this summer.

"We're getting really good feedback being one-on-one with people," he added. "Everyone's taking their time to give us their mind."

Coming up

- The city will launch this year's version of Clean and Green during an event on Tuesday.
- The initiative includes a citywide cleanup effort, lessons on the importance of reducing litter and, overall, a challenge to make Londoner cleaner (and greener).

Charges laid. Police arrest 28-year-old for attempting to rob gas bar with tire iron

Police have laid charges against a 28-year-old London man after they said he entered a gas bar at Oxford Street West and Westdel Bourne with a tire iron and demanded cash.

Police said both an employee and the suspect were left with head injuries after the incident, which took place on April 8.

The suspect did not receive any cash, but fled the area in a stolen vehicle that was found abandoned on Boler Road later that night.

Aaron Schuyler was arrested the next day and charged with attempted robbery, assault with a weapon, possession of property obtained by crime over $5,000 and having his face disguised.

Details about the incident were released Friday.

METRO

Ukraine to launch 'anti-terrorist' action against pro-Russian forces

Army involvement. 'We're not going to allow Russia to repeat the Crimean scenario,' president says

Supporters at a pro-Russian rally beat a pro-Western activist in Kharkiv, Ukraine, Sunday. OLGA IVASHCHENKO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ukraine is launching a "large-scale anti-terrorist operation" to resist attacks of armed pro-Russian forces, Ukraine's President Oleksandr Turchynov said on Sunday in a televised address.

The authorities in Kyiv will use the army in order to prevent Russian forces from moving in, as they did in Crimea, Turchynov said, pledging amnesty to anyone laying down arms by Monday morning.

"The Security Council has made a decision to begin a large-scale anti-terrorist operation with participation of army forces," he said. "We're not going to allow Russia to repeat the Crimean scenario in Ukraine's east."

Ukrainian special forces exchanged gunfire with a pro-Russia militia in an eastern city Sunday morning, with at least one security officer killed and five others wounded. It was the first reported gun battle in eastern Ukraine, where armed pro-Russia men have seized a number of government buildings in recent days.

Turchynov said a Security Service captain was killed and two colonels wounded in a gun battle outside Slovyansk, where the police station and the Security Service office were seized a day earlier.

An Associated Press reporter found a bullet-ridden SUV on the side of the road and a pool of blood on the passenger seat where the gun battle was supposed to have taken place.

Vladimir Kolodchenko, a lawmaker from the area who witnessed the attack, said a car with four gunmen pulled up on the road in a wooden area outside Slovyansk and open fire on Ukrainian soldiers who were standing beside their vehicles. Both attackers and the Ukrainian servicemen left soon after the shooting. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UN Security Council

Emergency meeting

The UN Security Council called an emergency meeting at Russia's request to discuss the growing crisis in Ukraine.

Russia's UN mission sent a text message to reporters saying a closed meeting of the Security Council would begin at 8 p.m. Sunday. The Russian mission said it had requested the meeting.

The President of the Security Council confirmed in an email that members had been invited to attend "informal consultations" on Ukraine Sunday evening.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seal hunt starts amid multiple controversies

The annual East Coast seal hunt starts Monday against a backdrop of ongoing trade and court challenges in Europe and renewed claims from animal welfare groups that the 400-year-old industry is dead in the water.

Rebecca Aldworth, executive director of the Canadian wing of Humane Society International, said on Sunday that only 15 boats have signalled their intention to take part in the hunt, which typically focuses on harp seals off the northeast coast of Newfoundland.

With the market for seal products closed in the United States, most of Europe and Russia, the commercial hunt is a shadow of what it once was, largely surviving on subsidies from the Newfoundland and Labrador government in the past few years, Aldworth said.

"From a market perspective, the seal hunt is very much over," she said in an interview, adding her group will return to the ice floes to document the slaughter.

However, the federal government has been steadfast in its support of the hunt, insisting it's a humane, sustainable and economically viable pursuit that is important to many coastal communities.

The East Coast seal hunt starts today. DAVID HECKER/GETTY IMAGES

Fisheries Minister Gail Shea admitted Sunday that those opposed to the hunt have been effective in shutting down international markets.

"They have been spreading misinformation about the Canadian seal hunt and Canadian seal products for as long as I've been in this position," Shea said in an interview from Vancouver. "It's grossly unfair. We've done a lot of work in ensuring that our Canadian seal hunt is humane."

"I believe there's great opportunity in the sealing industry," Shea said, adding that Ottawa continues to invest in product development.

Meanwhile, the industry continues to push ahead with a court case in the European Union aimed at overturning a ban on seal products, and the federal government is appealing a recent World Trade Organization decision to uphold the ban.

The WTO concluded in November that while the ban undermines fair trade, the restrictions can be justified on "public moral concerns" for animal welfare.

Shea said even though the EU has provided an exemption for Inuit seal hunters, the broader ban is effectively killing their markets anyway. "Trade should be governed by facts and evidence and not based on issues or morality fuelled by misinformation," Shea said.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Flight 370

Search for missing plane continues

Following four strong underwater signals in the past week, all is quiet in the hunt for the missing Malaysia Airlines jet, meaning the batteries in the plane's black boxes may have died.

Despite having no new transmissions from the black boxes' locator beacons to go on, air and sea crews were continuing their search in the southern Indian Ocean on Sunday.

"We're now into Day 37 of this tragedy," said aviation expert Geoffrey Thomas. "The battery life on the beacons is supposed to last 30 days. We're hoping it might last 40 days. ... What they're hoping for is to get one more, maybe two more pings so they can do a triangulation of the sounds and try and narrow the (search) area."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A hopeful drawing of the missing plane. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Protesting pipeline with art

A crop art image protesting the proposed Keystone XL pipeline covers a cornfield outside of Neligh, Neb. The image, which lies on the proposed pipeline route, was created by the farmers, ranchers and Native American tribes of the Cowboy and Indian Alliance in collaboration with artist John Quigley. LOU DEMATTEIS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Taxman back. CRA says it's fixed Heartbleed bug

The federal tax agency says its online services are up and running again after it blocked public access five days ago due to the Heartbleed bug.

The Canada Revenue Agency says the security risk has been addressed, but added it will not apply interest or penalties to individual taxpayers filing their 2013 tax returns after April 30 for a period equal to the length of the service interruption.

Revenue Minister Kerry-Lynne Findlay says that means 2013 tax returns filed by May 5 will not incur interest or penalties.

Service has also been restored to all publicly accessible Government of Canada websites, the Treasury Board said in a release.

The Heartbleed bug is caused by a flaw in OpenSSL software, which is commonly used on the Internet to provide security and privacy.

The bug has the potential to expose private data.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kansas City

Three shot dead, 15-year-old boy in critical condition

Three people were shot and killed Sunday afternoon in suburban Kansas City, and a spokeswoman for a local hospital said a 15-year-old boy was in critical condition.

Overland Park city spokesman Sean Reilly said two people died at the Jewish Community Center of Greater Kansas City campus and one was killed at Village Shalom, which is a retirement community that is several blocks away from the centre.

Overland Park Fire Department spokesman Jason Rhodes said Sunday afternoon that one person of interest was in custody.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

U.S. looking into new Syria toxic gas claims

Opposition-held village. Both sides blame each other for alleged attack that reportedly injured scores of people

The U.S. ambassador to the United Nations said Sunday that reports of a poison gas attack Friday in a rural village north of Damascus were so far "unsubstantiated," adding that the United States was trying to establish what really happened.

Opposition groups, including the main Western-backed Syrian National Coalition, said the poison gas attack at Kfar Zeita hurt dozens of people, though it did not identify the gas used. State-run Syrian television blamed members of the al-Qaida-linked Nusra Front rebel group for the attack, saying they used chlorine gas to kill two people and injured more than 100. It did not say how it confirmed chlorine was used.

An opposition activist said government helicopters dropped a number of barrel bombs on the village that appeared to carry the toxic gas, killing one person and choking about 100 people, many of them in their homes.

In the Syrian capital, President Bashar Assad said the conflict was shifting in the government's favour after a string of government triumphs against rebels. Assad's forces also have struck local ceasefire agreements with the opposition in a number of neighbourhoods, where weary rebels have turned over their weapons in exchange for an easing of suffocating blockades.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Civil defence rescue workers carry the body of a victim of a Syrian government airstrike in Aleppo, Syria. The northern city witnessed intense clashes on Saturday, according to activists. ALEPPO MEDIA CENTER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WESTGATE HONDA
UNLOCK A DEAL
TENT EVENT
Top dollar for your trade
VOTED BEST IMPORT CAR DEALERSHIP IN LONDON
Finance & Lease rates from 0.99%
Honda Used Certified rates as low as 2.99%
Cash Deals Up to $5,000 Off
DEMO & 2013 MODELS CLEARANCE
Over 50 Pre-Owned
ON SALE!
2012 Civic EX $16,000
2011 Accord EX-L $19,700
2011 CR-V EX $20,500
2011 CR-V EX-L $23,500
2014 Odyssey SE $29,900
2013 Pilot Touring $42,500
2012 Civic LX $15,500
2008 Accord EX-L $14,500
2012 Civic EX $16,900
2011 CR-V EX-L $23,500
2010 Accord EX $17,500
2011 Civic EX-L $16,900
2012 CR-V EX-L $26,000
2012 Odyssey EX-L $33,500
2012 Civic LX $15,500
2014 ACCORD LX
LEASE BI-WEEKLY $125 @ 1.99% $0 DOWN PAYMENT
CASH INCENTIVE $2000
2014 CIVIC DX
LEASE BI-WEEKLY $85 @ 1.99% $0 DOWN PAYMENT
CASH INCENTIVE $1000
2014 CR-V LX
LEASE BI-WEEKLY $135 @ 1.99% $0 DOWN PAYMENT
CASH INCENTIVE $2500
2014 FIT DX
LEASE BI-WEEKLY $67 @ 0.99% $0 DOWN PAYMENT
CASH INCENTIVE $1500
2014 CROSSTOUR EX-L
LEASE OR FINANCE Starting @ 0.99% $37,545
CASH INCENTIVE $1000
2014 ODYSSEY LX
LEASE BI-WEEKLY $178 @ 2.99% $0 DOWN PAYMENT
CASH INCENTIVE $3000
2014 PILOT LX
LEASE BI-WEEKLY $214 @ 2.99% $0 DOWN PAYMENT
CASH INCENTIVE $4000
2014 RIDGELINE DX
LEASE OR FINANCE Starting @ 0.99% $34,990
CASH INCENTIVE $3000
519-472-4890
westgatehonda.com
680 Oxford St West
HONDA

Getting a taste of Tangerine

HOW TO ROLL
Alison Griffiths
metronews.ca

The words love and bank don't often appear together when we talk about financial institutions. One exception is the late ING Direct because of its un-bank-like plain language, straightforward loan process and higher rates on savings accounts than the Big Five.

ING Direct, purchased in 2012 by Scotiabank, rebranded itself as Tangerine on April 8. Seriously? A fruit for a bank?

The name might not inspire confidence but the bosses of the orange-hued bank assure us that the best of ING Direct is still in place at Tangerine.

For investors, this includes one-stop-shopping portfolios for RRSPs, Tax Free Savings Accounts (TFSA) and non-registered accounts. Formerly called Streetwise Portfolios, they offer a simple investment solution in a world filled with thousands of mutual funds.

Happily, Tangerine still offers the same four basic portfolios: balanced income, balanced, balanced growth and equity growth. Pick one and you're done.

The portfolios all contain the same four investments: Canadian bonds, Canadian stocks, U.S. stocks and international stocks. The difference is the proportions.

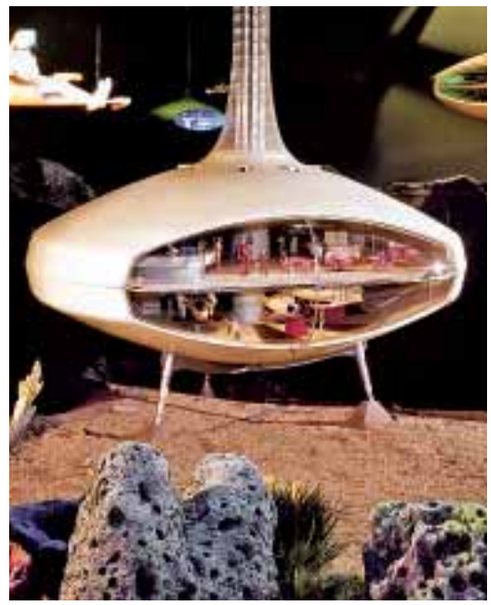
Each of the four components in the portfolios simply copy or track an index, like the S&P/TSX 60 Index (Canada) or the S&P 500 Index (U.S.). This index investing approach has long been proven to be a superior way to invest.

A big boost to the bottom line is the fees at 1.07 per cent annually for the entire portfolio compared to around 2.25 per cent for Canadian equity mutual funds. You can invest more cheaply, but these portfolios do all the work for you.

Tangerine offers an excellent option for beginners through to seasoned investors.

Pick your portfolio

- Balanced income is the most conservative — with 70 per cent in bonds, which are lower risk than stocks, and just 30 per cent divided among Canadian, U.S. and international stocks.
- The least conservative is equity growth with 25 per cent in bonds, 50 per cent in Canadian stocks and 25 per cent in U.S. and international stocks.



A past view of the future

This 1964 photo from the World's Fair in the Queens borough of New York shows a view of the future in the "Futurama 2" ride put together by General Motors. The millions of visitors who attended the fair were introduced to a range of technological innovations and predictions. Some of those turned out to be right on the money (such as personal use of the computer) and others, perhaps thankfully, were way off the mark (such as colonies on the moon and under the sea). THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Music app

Hubb aims to become Tinder of music industry

Borrowing the addictive "swipe left, swipe right" interface from the wildly popular Tinder dating app, a pair of Calgary entrepreneurs believe their own startup could see the same success and turn the music industry on its head in the process. Hubb Music is set to launch an app for beta testing in May. ROBSON FLETCHER/METRO IN CALGARY

Oil pipeline

Kitimat residents vote 'no'

The residents of Kitimat, B.C., have voted against the proposed Northern Gateway pipeline project in a non-binding plebiscite. The ballot count from Saturday's vote was 1,793 opposed versus 1,278 who supported the multi-billion dollar project. THE CANADIAN PRESS

CLEAR VISION IS PRICELESS.

But it doesn't have to be costly.

Lowest Price Guarantee‡

Book a free consultation at 1-855-895-2020 or lasikmd.com

LASIK MD VISION

Laser vision correction starting at $490/eye*

*Prices are subject to change without prior notice and vary based on prescription strength. Only applicable on a procedure for both eyes. Other conditions may apply. ‡Conditions apply; see lasikmd.com/lpg.

LET'S RETHINK CATHOLIC EDUCATION

URBAN COMPASS

Todd Devlin
london@metronews.ca

The rules surrounding the religious components at Catholic schools are about to get even murkier.

An Ontario divisional court ruling last week sided with a Brampton father, Oliver Erazo, and granted his son the right not to participate in any religious activities at his high school.

In other words, while Jonathan Erazo, who's not Catholic, will continue to attend Notre Dame Catholic Secondary School, he won't — for all intents and purposes — receive a Catholic education.

The elder Erazo was obviously pleased with the outcome, but he said he was also relieved the case was over.

"The court's decision means my family will no longer have to (live) with this prolonged anguish we have been put through any longer," he said.

Now, you might be thinking: "Hey, Mr. Erazo: If you're not Catholic, and you don't want your child to be exposed to Catholic teachings, why did you send your son to a Catholic school?"

That's a perfectly fair point, and the whole situation does beg the question of whether it would have been easier for Jonathan to simply go to another school.

But, of course, Erazo has the right (as all Ontario parents do) to send his son to any publicly funded high school he chooses. Under the Education Act, students of all faiths are allowed to attend Catholic schools, as long as they take the religion courses at those schools. That said, parents can write to the school board to request that their child be excused from "any program or course of study in religious education."

The Erazos took it a step further. In fact, they took it all the way.

Now the question is, how long before others follow?

There are plenty of reasons non-Catholic families choose to send their children to Catholic schools. In some cases, it's simply a matter of geography — the Catholic school is the closest high school to their home.

Perhaps the school comes highly recommended by friends or family. Maybe the school boasts strong test scores. Or brand-new facilities. Or successful sports teams (in the Erazos case, it was a combination of geography and favourable ratings on a school-ranking website).

But what is a Catholic school whose students can opt out of all religious activities? It sounds an awful lot like a public school.

So what happens if students begin opting out of religious "programs" in droves? Seems to me the system would lose a lot of the "Catholic" in its Catholic schools. So then is it time for just one system?

Why not have one non-exclusionary system in which religious "programs" could be an option to any student if they so choose.

In other words, maybe it should be less about opting out and more about opting in.

Follow Todd Devlin on Twitter @UrbanCompassLdn

WE ACT:
CANADA DOES GOOD

Ottawa youth worker creates 'ultimate' camp for neighbourhood youth

Who: Fahd Alhattab, 20, youth mentor, from Ottawa
What: Co-founded the York Street Ultimate March Break Camp, a one-week experience offered free to children from low-income communities.
Why: To pay forward the mentorship and support he received while growing up by mentoring youth in his community.

CONTRIBUTED

Arriving in Canada from his native Kuwait in 1998, Fahd Alhattab grew up in a low-income Ottawa neighbourhood and turned to his role models at the Boys and Girls Club for hope and inspiration. In 2011, he teamed up with friend Muhammad Zaman to give back to their community by starting a camp for local youth. This year, the pair raised $14,000 to welcome 60 kids for a week of fun — from science workshops to a field trip to a reptile zoo!

What motivated you and Muhammad to launch the March break camp in your community?
"We loved our school and the neighbourhood, but as we grew up and started volunteering, we recognized how difficult that neighbourhood is for the current youth population. So we decided to start a March break camp for these kids. We assembled a team of friends and colleagues and started planning. It's a little baby of ours, something we're really proud of. It takes work but it's worth it at the end of every year."

How do you feel when you see youth participating in your camp experience? "It feels good, it feels warm! For those of us that can be leaders, it's a responsibility. I'm able to fulfill my responsibility to these kids because someone helped my family get out of the socio-economic distress in that neighbourhood. I owe it to the people who helped me and I owe it to the kids that are here." CRAIG AND MARC KIELBURGER

Twitter

@metropicks asked: A family from Ontario has lived the past year like it was 1986. What year would you go back to?

@dasPongo: I would pick 2015. I am from the future ya know.

@Russell_Barth: 1935, when #Marijuana was still legal.

@phil_cpa: O come on. I lived through It with cable tv, a desk top 'puter with games. Try going back to 1867!

@Zaedum: 1985. Hair metal needs to come back.

@StoriesFrom17th: 1997. Name one thing that happened in 97. Exactly.

@speirsr: 1928: That's the year for me. Hot Dance jazz, speakeasies and vaudeville. I could wear spatterdashes!

@PPCSaskatoon: what year was the year of MC Hammer and hammer pants? I pick that year

Follow @metropicks and take part in our daily poll.

METRO AUGMENTED REALITY

SEE THE NEWS COME ALIVE...

DOWNLOAD METRO NEWS APP | FILL SCREEN WITH IMAGE TO SCAN | METRO AR IMAGE JUMPS TO LIFE

In this issue, you can find AR enhancements on page 11 in Scene, and page 17 in Sports.

To see pages from Metro spring to life, simply download or update the Metro News app available from your device's app store and follow these three easy steps:

1. Open the Metro News app on your smartphone or tablet device. Click the AR icon in the top right corner.

2. Hold your device over any image that has the AR logo near it. Make sure you wait for the green scanning bar to read the image!

3. Voilà! You should see the AR in action — like a video, slide show or mobile content experience. You can even move your phone away from the page and interact with the content directly on your device.

MetroTube

Wall Dogs of New York

ANDREW FIFIELD
metronews.ca

Vocativ spent a day with what they describe as the true mad men (and women) of New York City advertising: the Wall Dogs, intrepid souls who dangle from the sides of the city's buildings to create hand-drawn murals plugging any number of goods and services.

It's a crazy way to make a living at the best of times. But when you factor in all that time spent labouring under polar vortexes and whatnot, what we're getting is a portrait of some deeply talented artists working in conditions that would make most of our knees tremble.

YOUTUBE SCREENGRAB

metro
President: Bill McDonald • Vice-President & Group Publisher, Metro Eastern Canada Greg Lutes • Editor-in-Chief Charlotte Empey • Deputy Editor Fernando Carneiro • National Deputy Editor, Digital Quin Parker • Managing Editor Angela Mullins • Managing Editor, News & Business Amber Shortt • Managing Editor, Life & Entertainment Dean Lisk • Retail Sales Manager Joshua Green • Distribution Manager Rob Delvallet • Vice-President, Sales and Business Development Tracy Day • Vice-President, Creative and Marketing Services Jeff Smith • Vice-President, Finance Phil Jameson • METRO LONDON • 350 Talbot Street Main Floor London ON N6A 2R6 • Telephone: 519-434-3556 • Fax: 888-474-3094 • Advertising: 519-434-3556 Ext. 2223 • adinfolondon@metronews.ca • Distribution: london_distribution@metronews.ca • News tips: london@metronews.ca • Letters to the Editor: londonletters@metronews.ca

See that symbol? It means you can scan the photograph below with your Metro News app to see more content. Blood popsicles? Tilda Swinton has a treat for Tom Hiddleston

SCENE

Ebooks

Every Object Has A Story

By. The Royal Ontario Museum

iBooks

MIND THE APP
Kris Abel
@RealKrisAbel
scene@metronews.ca

Here we have 21 museum artifacts artistically interpreted through creative photography and an anthology of short stories by notable authors including Charlotte Gray, Wayson Choy, and Robert Bateman. Although entertaining, somehow the objects themselves have become obscured by the process and it's hard to know what you're looking at. What's missing is the interactive intimacy that an ebook should deliver.

Box office

Captain America beats back Rio 2

With $41.4 million in its second week of release, Captain America: The Winter Soldier held off Rio 2 at the weekend box office. According to studio estimates Sunday, the Marvel superhero narrowly bested the animated family film. Rio 2 debuted with $39 million,
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Relationships can be bloody difficult

Only Lovers Left Alive. Tom Hiddleston talks about starring in a post-Twilight saga vampire love story

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Only Lovers Left Alive opens on April 25. CONTRIBUTED

With Only Lovers Left Alive, British actor Tom Hiddleston teams up with Tilda Swinton and director Jim Jarmusch to wrestle the vampire genre back from the Twilight crowd, with Hiddleston and Swinton starring as two moody, music-obsessed bloodsuckers who can't live without each other.

Was there any hesitation about stepping into the vampire world?
Absolutely none. It was amazing. I met Jim Jarmusch in November 2011, and I'd just finished shooting Avengers, and I was in New York for War Horse, which was just opening, and I was about to shoot the Shakespeare plays for PBS. So there (were) superheroes and soldiers and Shakespeare, and I met Jim and he said, "I'm going to make a film about love, and it's about two very delicate, sophisticated creatures who love music and poetry and nature. He's a kind of rock star musician who's also a kind of scientist and physicist, and she's a poet. Oh, and by the way, they're vampires (laughs)."

The vampire theme was really a framing for Jim to attempt a narrative about this theme of love, acceptance, time, creativity and mortality.

When you first watched the film with an audience, were you surprised people found it so funny?
It was really pleasing, actually, because we wanted there to be levity and lightness in it, and humour, but not in a way that seemed to be overreaching. We didn't want to seem like we were pandering to the audience in bad taste, which would dilute the integrity of the attempt. And the attempt was really to make something very delicate and sophisticated and refined about love and acceptance and time and art and music and poetry. These are big themes, and we didn't want to seem heavy-handed. Jim wanted to be very light on his feet. So hearing the laughter is thrilling, truly, because when you're delivering deadpan stuff about the literature of the world, you want people to get it.

Swinton or Hemsworth?

We asked Hiddleston if he had to choose between looking at Tilda Swinton or Chris Hemsworth all day, who would he choose. "The dance is different, but I love dancing with both of them," he said laughing.

I loved that John Hurt plays Christopher Marlowe.
Yeah, it's a lovely joke that Christopher Marlowe is still alive and well, living in Tangier with a portrait of Shakespeare on his wall with a knife through (his) head.

Robert Pattinson and Kristen Stewart

Are RPatz and KStew eternal partners?

While fans were shocked to learn of Kristen Stewart's 2012 affair with director Rupert Sanders, then-boyfriend Robert Pattinson probably wasn't that surprised, according to Radar Online. "When they were officially dating, they always had a policy of 100 per cent honesty, which did create issues. Robert was always very frank about his flings with other women, and that worked for Kristen, too," a source says. "They had an open relationship, and it's amazing that Kristen didn't reveal this info when she was being painted as a 'Jezebel.' Rob has had other women on the side and Kristen has had other women and men as well. Their relationship was always a business and a spiritual partnership more than a romantic one." And, the source adds, the couple's breakup was equally as matter-of-fact: "They were pretty upfront with each other when they got sick and tired of each other. It was the strangest relationship, but keeping each other at arm's length is working in their favour," the source explains. "Kristen and Rob are still close and definitely in contact, and they still sleep together when the opportunity comes up."

Kelly Osbourne

Kelly Osbourne says stop the Bieber bashing

Kelly Osbourne wants everyone to leave Justin Bieber alone. "When it comes to Justin Bieber, I find it really unfair. I think people need to give the kid a break," Osbourne, who gained notoriety as a teen on the reality series The Osbournes, tells the Huffington Post. "When I was 16, all of a sudden I was one of the most famous 16-year-olds in the entire world. And it happened overnight — and there wasn't Twitter then. Every teenager deserves to make a mistake and act out and learn from them. And how can they learn from their mistakes if there's always somebody there trying to fix it for them and no one actually trying to help them?"

METRO DISH

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Who will take up the truthiness torch?

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News in New York

"I gotta tell you, I do not envy whoever they try to put in that chair. Folks, those are some huge shoes to fill and some really big pants," Stephen Colbert said last night of David Letterman's retirement. He was, as is his wont, joking, of course; Colbert himself will inherit The Late Show from Letterman in 2015, becoming its second-ever host. But his quip raises a question: Who will replace Colbert, now that The Colbert Report is ending?

Comedy Central hasn't made any announcements — understandable, since the gap in their schedule is still almost a year away. But all these late-night musical chairs have whetted my appetite for more speculation. Here are a few worthy replacements for that plum 11:30 p.m. slot.

Samantha Bee: The Colbert Report was a rousing success for almost 10 years. Since spinning off a performer from The Daily Show worked once, why not try it again? Bee is hilarious and she's been on The Daily Show forever. She and her husband, fellow correspondent Jason Jones, could do a his-and-hers talk show.

Craig Ferguson: Since Ferguson was passed over for the Late Show throne in favour of Colbert, speculation is rampant that he'll depart CBS when his contract is up next year. Maybe he and Colbert can play musical talk shows and Ferguson can slide into Colbert's old slot. A smaller cable audience might be a better fit for him anyway: He's always had a weird take on the hosting gig. His sidekick is a skeleton.

Chris Gethard: The Chris Gethard Show is a cult favourite public access show that recently taped a pilot for Comedy Central. The strange, go-for-broke show features live calls from fans, a cast of recurring characters like The Human Fish and, occasionally, peril for the host, who's prone to do things like sit in a vat of ice cream for hours and get freezer burn on his skin. The new hole in Comedy Central's schedule hasn't escaped the show's dedicated fans: #GethardAfterDailyShow is already making the rounds on social media.

Reruns of The Colbert Report: I would be fine with 10 more years of Colbert, even recycled Colbert.

Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

Not so Pitt-ure perfect behind closed doors

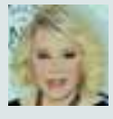
Angelina Jolie and Brad Pitt may project an air of effortless domestic bliss, but a few catty sources are more than happy to dispel that myth, telling Star magazine that everything behind the scenes is not as it seems. First of all, there's Jolie's "very controlling ways" when it comes to public image. "Angie controls her press and image with an iron fist. She likes to project this kind of hippie, Audrey Hepburn thing, where she flies around the world doing all the selfless stuff, but it's all orchestrated," the source says, adding that the actress and humanitarian "is very controlling of Brad and his press, his wardrobe — everything. He does what she says, but in private he likes to smoke cigarettes and marijuana. He's a huge stoner." But one thing Jolie apparently can't control? The couple's six kids. "Those children are wild. There's constant screaming at all times of the day and night and they are extremely messy. You will find food, empty McDonald's wrappers, candy wrappers, piles of toys and clothes, even dead bugs all over the house," another source says. "It's disgusting, but Brad and Angie think it's great."

Debbie Rowe seeking custody of Jackson kids

Michael Jackson's ex-wife Debbie Rowe is reportedly seeking custody of two of the late singer's kids because their current co-guardians are "ineffective," according to TMZ. Rowe, who is the biological mother of 17-year-old Prince and 16-year-old Paris, thinks the Jackson family compound isn't a suitable environment for the teens because of the bad influence family members like Jermaine Jackson provide. While Rowe is reportedly seeking to move the two to her Palmdale, Calif., ranch, she is not seeking any remuneration.

Debbie Rowe

Twitter



@Joan_Rivers
I've had a rough couple of months. I need to pamper myself. I'm going to the Hermes store for some retail therapy.

@KellyOsbourne
@ParisHilton please grow up there is no need to act like a child you could of happily joined us! it's not 2005 no one cares!

@tonyhawk
My 5-year-old daughter: "Why do they call it boxing when they don't throw boxes at each other?"

Kids need money to learn

Allowances. The best way to teach children about money is to give them their own dough to manage

GAIL VAZ-OXLADE
Gail blogs daily at gailvazoxlade.com

Allowances provide lessons kids can take to the piggy bank. ISTOCK

Before children can learn to manage money well, they first need to be able to get their sticky little fingers on the stuff. Most people have no problem with that concept. But when it comes to what you should require of your children in exchange for that allowance, the debate rages. Some people feel an allowance should have no strings attached. Others think it should be tied to chores in the home, school grades or behaviour: "If you don't smarten up, I'll cut off your allowance!"

Just as the allowance debate is strongly pro and con on the idea of attaching strings, so too is the debate about whether or not kids should work for their money. Some parents feel that school is a child's job, and any other work detracts from potential success at school. Others think that a part-time job is perfectly fine, while still others believe that a part-time job is essential because it begins the development of a good work ethic.

From early on, children receive mixed messages about money. At home they hear one thing, at school and among their peers, another. Mom does it one way; Dad is the complete opposite. What is consistent is that nobody seems able to agree on the money rules. And often those mixed messages stay with kids long after your parental influence has passed.

I'm of the school that believes that allowances should come strings-free and that it's perfectly fine for children to get a part-time job to supplement their allowance — not to replace it — when they get older.

Think about why you're giving your kid an allowance. The objective should be to teach him money-management skills. The fact that you work hard for your money will be brought home when your child learns relative value — how many hours he has to work to afford that pair of running shoes.

Money doesn't work as a reward for good behaviour. Just ask any of the management theorists who have proven that money is not a motivator for adults. So why should it be for children? Good behaviour is based on an understanding of right and wrong, thoughtfulness, caring and consideration, along with myriad other positive attributes, all of which have to be internalized.

Good grades are your child's responsibility. School is his primary job and good grades are an indication that he is doing his job well. If you provide financial reward for good grades, you are externalizing the reward. Instead, the reward should be internalized: The self-esteem and pride that accompanies having done well.

As for an allowance being payment for chores, who pays you to do the chores in your home? Chores are a part of each individual's responsibility to the family. Payment for regular chores negates a child's individual responsibility as a member of the family unit. (Payment for extra household tasks — those above and beyond a child's normal chores — is fine when they are specifically doing the task to earn some money.)

The biggest problem in tying your child's allowance to the completion of her chores comes on the day when you must withdraw the allowance. Now you're teaching your child, "I have the money and you'll have to do as I say to get some of it!" That's a straight-out power play. "I have the money, so I have the power." A far better tack for children who don't follow through on household responsibilities is to do a like-for-like comparison. "Darling daughter, if you don't make your bed, I'm going to have to. And I only have time to do one thing, make your bed or make your lunch. Which one do you want to do?"

Whatever your own experiences with money as a child, try to put them aside as you begin to teach your children how money works and the role it should play in their lives. To ensure money is not imbued with meanings it should have, don't tie things like self-esteem, power or love to money. Stay balanced when you talk about it. And, above all, figure out what message you want your children to get from your money lessons. For, like it or not, they are learning from you. What lesson would you like your child to learn today?

WANT TO BE SMARTER ABOUT YOUR MONEY? GO TO MYMONEYMYCHOICES.COM AND FOLLOW THE ROADMAP TO SUCCESS.

Let the steady flow of funds begin

To learn how to manage money responsibly, children need a steady flow of funds they can rely on.

- The experience of handling a weekly allowance will teach many fundamental skills, including how to manage a cash flow, how to plan ahead, the skill of setting goals (both short- and long-term) and how to save to satisfy a goal.
- With your guidance, this cash flow can also be used to teach important lessons in borrowing and lending, the pleasure derived from sharing, and how to be a good consumer.

Have you been diagnosed with Fibromyalgia or do you have unresolved muscle or nerve pain?

Join a clinical research trial to evaluate the effectiveness of a new investigational natural health product.

Contact KGK Synergize Clinic:
519-858-8359
clinic@kgksynergize.com
www.kgkclinic.com

Call us to see if you qualify!
Compensation up to $100.00

KGK synergize

Participants needed for a Blood Pressure study!

Join a clinical research trial to evaluate the effectiveness of an investigational dietary supplement for mild and moderate hypertension.

Call now to see if you qualify!

Contact KGK Synergize Clinic:
519-858-8359
clinic@kgksynergize.com
www.kgkclinic.com

Participants are compensated up to $250.00

KGK synergize

'Round the world wisdom

I've gotten up and I can't get back down!

LESSONS FROM THE DESERT
Stéfan Danis
life@metronews.ca

The severe market crash in October 2008 changed my life. I started running to regain my health, both emotional and physical. Shortly after I took my first steps, I ran the Gobi March in China in June '09, followed by the Atacama Crossing in Chile in '10 and the Sahara Race in Egypt in '11. In this post, I share a lesson about life, learned from the desert.

Training for the Gobi, I needed to find ways to spend more time on my legs to replicate an average day in the desert. Once in the desert, I would be running for five to eight hours in soft sand each day, as opposed to three to five hours on pavement.

Get up, stand up

My energy level increased and consequently so did the intentionality and quality of my conversations.

The first steps were simple. I sold my vehicle and stopped taking elevators. And then the big idea came: work standing up. Over the course of a month, I transitioned 20 years of sitting habits into a new routine of working while standing. Here's why and how it can benefit you, too.

Standing eight or more hours a day strengthened my legs and back for the race, and for other activities. And then the following unexpectedly occurred:

1) Standing and walking while at the office helped me lose 30 pounds in three months, "free burning" up to 25 per cent more calories per day (free because it doesn't feel like exercise).

2) Having an open-door policy, more than 30 unplanned meetings occur in my office daily. Without a chair to sit on, these now "stand-up meetings" became very expedient: Everyone got to the point faster, giving me newfound time to focus on other priorities.

3) Live or on the phone with a headset, moving around allowed me to engage my arms and body in my conversations. My energy level increased and consequently so did the intentionality and quality of my conversations.

Some of life's gifts come from being forced to change ingrained habits. Being overburdened like most of you meant I needed to go about my training more creatively. As a result, my training's most precious gift is that I haven't sat since. Walking is a perfect way towards a healthy lifestyle — try it for yourself and let me know how it goes.

STÉFAN DANIS IS THE CEO OF NEXCAREER AND MANDRAKE, AND THE AUTHOR OF GOBI RUNNER

Start from the feet up and fitness is sure to follow. ISTOCK

WESTERVELT COLLEGE Since 1881

Take charge of your career!
Be employment-ready as a Personal Support Worker by summer 2014.

Why Westervelt's Personal Support Worker program?
- Westervelt's extensive healthcare employer network
- Guaranteed lifetime career services now & 25 years down the road!
- Get real world experience - Guaranteed work practicum
- Gain hands-on experience during your program
- Save money - FREE Student Parking

There's only 6 months between you & your dream career. Classes start April 14! Call 519.668.2000 or www.westerveltcollege.com to get more information.

INGEBORG SHOES
now carries SAS®

PRALINE
INTRODUCING A NEW STYLE!

FREE Wallet
with every SAS purchase
$40 value - Offer ends April 19, 2014

Ingeborg Shoes
located in Cherryhill Mall
301 Oxford St. West
519-438-2301

SASshoes.com
INGEBORG SHOES
San Antonio Shoemakers™

Sweet, simple maple and pecan tilapia will make for a delightful Passover dish

ROSE REISMAN
For more, visit rosereisman.com or follow her on twitter @rosereisman

This recipe serves four. ROSE REISMAN

For Passover, this is a perfect entrée whereby all the ingredients are kosher for the holiday. Keep in mind the only nuts not allowed are peanuts and sesame seeds. The pecans, honey and maple syrup simmer together until the sauce becomes syrupy and thick.

Immediately pour half the sauce over the fish while it's still warm.

To prevent the sauce from sticking, use parchment paper on your baking sheet. If the sauce becomes too thick to pour, gently reheat. Tilapia is one of the leanest fish with only 129 calories and 2 ½ grams of fat for 3 oz.

Pecans contain vitamin E, which is a natural antioxidant that helps protect against cell damage and fights Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, cancer and heart disease. They are also a naturally good source of protein.

You can always use a food thermometer when cooking fish. Place the prong into the thickest part of the fish, and when the temperature reaches 125°F the fish is medium-cooked. The fish continues cooking for at least 5 minutes after this time, so you don't want to overcook the fish or it will be dry.

Directions

1. Heat the oven to 425°F. Spray a nonstick baking pan with cooking oil or line with parchment paper.

2. Place the pecans in a small, nonstick frying pan and toast over medium-high heat for 3 minutes or until golden and fragrant. Stir in the honey, maple syrup and butter. Reduce the heat to low and cook for 3 minutes or until slightly thickened. Pour half the sauce over the tilapia on the baking pan.

3. Bake the tilapia, cooking for 10 minutes per inch thickness of the fish or until the fish flakes easily when pierced with a fork.

4. Reheat the remaining sauce and serve with fish. Garnish with parsley.

THE BEST OF ROSE REISMAN (WHITECAP BOOKS) BY ROSE REISMAN

Ingredients

- 3 tbsp finely chopped pecans
- 3 tbsp liquid honey
- 2 tbsp maple syrup
- 2 tsp butter or margarine
- Four - 6 oz portions tilapia (1 ½ lbs)
- Garnish:

3 tbsp fresh parsley

Restrictions

This recipe may not meet all Jewish dietary restrictions.

FLASH FOOD
From your fridge to your table in 30 minutes or less

DOWNLOAD METRO APP | FILL SCREEN WITH IMAGE TO SCAN | SCAN EGG FOR CODE

No purchase necessary. Contest open to residents of Canada, excluding Quebec, who have reached 18 years of age or older. To enter, for complete contest rules, and alternate method of entry visit www.clubmetro.com

Jays slide into top form

Melky Cabrera of the Toronto Blue Jays slides safe into home plate in front of catcher Matt Wieters of the Baltimore Orioles as he scores off of a hit by teammate Colby Rasmus in the sixth inning at Camden Yards in Baltimore. Jose Bautista launched a three-run homer and Rasmus and Brett Lawrie added solo shots as the Blue Jays set season highs for runs and hits Sunday to beat the Orioles 11-3. PATRICK SMITH/GETTY IMAGES

Silent Knights fans await Memorial Cup

DAVE LANGFORD
dave.langford@metronews.ca

It was about 1 p.m. Sunday afternoon and Budweiser Gardens was closed for business. Even the security entrance had a sign that said, 'Back in five minutes.' But nobody appeared.

At J Dee's Market Grill at King and Talbot, only three people sat dining in a corner booth. Nobody else was in sight.

The Rocks on King and Robinson Hall bars did not bother to open. They certainly would have been alive with the sound of hockey by this hour, yes, even on a Sunday.

The tranquility — and glumness — was evident everywhere in the 'hood as the Mighty Knights had struck out.

Game 6 of the Ontario Hockey League conference semifinal series — scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at the Gardens — was not required as the Knights fell by the wayside Friday, somewhat meekly, in five games to the Guelph Storm.

So instead of being down 3-2 in the series and fighting to tie the best-of-seven affair up at three wins each, the Knights were sitting and waiting Sunday for the Memorial Cup tournament to begin May 16.

On that day and for the week that will follow, The Corner (King and Talbot) and the entire downtown will be back to life with the Knights, quite likely the Storm and the Western Hockey League and Quebec Major Junior Hockey League champions doing battle.

It wasn't supposed to be this way. The Knights were not supposed to be taking the unheralded "back door" into the tournament as host team. They were supposed to win their third consecutive OHL championship.

But who knew defenceman Zack Bell would break his leg, fellow overage defenceman Brady Austin would come down with mono, sniper Max Domi would injure his shoulder and goalie Anthony Stolarz would be suspended for eight games.

To be fair to backup goalie Jake Patterson, Stolarz could not have outplayed him.

But missing the brute strength, particularly in front of the Knights' net, from the close to 500 pounds of Bell and Austin was a huge challenge.

And Max Domi, quite fortunately, is not his father's son in his style of play when healthy and, despite playing his guts out, was not himself at the end of the Guelph series.

So while it was not the trail the Knights wanted to follow, the good news is they will be back — and the crowds will follow — 32 days from today.

Hockey royalty coming to town

New Toronto Maple Leafs president Brendan Shanahan will be the keynote speaker at the Memorial Cup opening gala May 15 at the London Convention Centre.

- Shanahan is a former London Knight who played in the NHL for 21 seasons, winning the Stanley Cup three times with the Detroit Red Wings. He was also recently inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame.
- Individual tickets for the event are $100 and tables of 10 are also available at mastercardmemorialcup.ca or 519-681-0800, ext. 1. Members of the four teams in the tournament will be introduced at the event.

MLB

Padres' Ross tames Tigers

Tyson Ross outduelled AL Cy Young Award winner Max Scherzer, and Jedd Gyorko and Xavier Nady homered as the San Diego Padres beat the Detroit Tigers 5-1 on Sunday to take two of three.

After two shaky opening starts, Ross (1-2) struck out seven and held the Tigers to one run and six hits in seven innings. He walked one. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kaillie Humphries

Bobsledder trains with MMA coach

Olympic bobsled champion Kaillie Humphries tried her hand at mixed martial arts Sunday, working out with renowned coach Firas Zahabi and two top UFC fighters.

The 28-year-old from Calgary has been a longtime fan of the sport and she got to experience it first-hand as part of the UFC Experience, a public workout at a Quebec City mall ahead of Wednesday's Ultimate Fighter Nations Finale card. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier League

Liverpool downs Man. City, eyes title

Liverpool took command of the captivating Premier League title race by beating Manchester City 3-2 in a match of wide-ranging emotions at Anfield, although the destiny of the trophy is also in Chelsea's hands after its win at Swansea on Sunday.

Hull's 5-3 victory over third-tier Sheffield United in the second FA Cup semifinal, which set up a meeting with Arsenal in the final, was overshadowed by the latest installment in the fight for the league title that still has some way to run.

Seeking a first championship in 24 years, Liverpool is the favourite after taking its winning streak to 10 game. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Liverpool's Martin Skrtel, right, celebrates with Steven Gerrard. CLINT HUGHES/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bubba bursts rookies' bubbles

Adam Scott presents Bubba Watson with the green jacket after Watson won the 2014 Masters Tournament by a three-stroke margin at Augusta National Golf Club on Sunday in Augusta, Ga. It was Watson's second time winning the Masters after earning his first green jacket two years ago. Scan the above image with the Metro News app to see how he celebrated this time around. ANDREW REDINGTON/GETTY IMAGES

The Masters. Watson holds off first-time Augusta competitors Spieth, Blixt for his second green jacket

Bubba Watson's second Masters title was nothing like the green jacket he won two years ago.

The only daring shot Watson hit was one he really didn't need. The wild swing in momentum came on the front nine, not the back nine of Augusta National. And the sweetest difference of all Sunday was seeing his two-year-old son walk toward him on the edge of the 18th green after his three-shot victory over Jordan Spieth.

Watson turned in another masterpiece and joined an elusive group as the 17th player to win the Masters more than once.

He turned a two-shot deficit into a two-shot lead on the final two holes of the front nine, then kept Spieth, 20, and everyone else at safe distance the rest of the way. Watson closed with a 3-under 69 to beat a pair of Masters rookies in Spieth and Jonas Blixt of Sweden.

Two years ago, when he hit that wild hook out of the trees on the 10th hole to win in a playoff, his wife and newly adopted son were watching at home in Florida. This time, young Caleb was decked out in a green-and-white striped Masters shirt and green tennis shoes as he waddled over to his father.

"This one's a lot different," Watson said. "The first one, for me, it was almost like I lucked into it."

After high-fiving the crowd on his way to sign his card, Watson returned to Butler Cabin to take back that green jacket he slipped on Adam Scott a year ago.

"After giving it away last year, I wanted it back," Watson said. "I told Adam we could just swap it back and forth every year."

Spieth, trying to become the youngest Masters champion, could only watch from the side of the green.

He dazzled the massive crowd early by holing out for birdie from the front bunker on No. 4, and making back-to-back birdies to build a two-shot lead through seven holes. Bidding to become the first player in 35 years to win a green jacket in his first try, Spieth looked to be well on his way.

But he three-putted for bogey on No. 8 — his first 6 on his card all week — as Watson got up-and-down for birdie to tie for the lead.

Spieth closed with six pars for a 72 and tied for second with Blixt, who never went away but never really threatened. Blixt shot a 71.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Multi-time champ

17

By winning the Masters on Sunday, Bubba Watson became the 17th player to have more than one win at Augusta under his belt.

Green is the colour of success.
We couldn't agree more.

Today, more of Canada's top employers are posting jobs with us. So whether you're looking to move up in your field, or master a whole new one, we can help you get there. It's what makes Workopolis Canada's number one job site.

workopolis.com #workopolis

WORKOPOLIS

"Number one job site" based on six-month average online job postings for period ending February 28, 2014. Comparison between Workopolis and all other major paid online job boards. Does not include online classified sites or job posting aggregator sites. Statistics provided by WANTED Technologies. © 2014 Workopolis.

ON-LINE | ON-AIR | ON-SITE

NEWS
IS HAPPENING NOW.
RIGHT NOW.
WWW.AM980.CA

AM980
NEWS TALK SPORTS

www.am980.ca

Franson on collapse of Leafs: 'That's not what good teams do'

NHL. Toronto faces an uncertain future yet again after disastrous post-Sochi campaign

Phil Kessel skates off the ice after Toronto was defeated 1-0 by the Ottawa Senators on Saturday in Ottawa. FRED CHARTRAND/THE CANADIAN PRESS

"Frustrating," "embarrassing" and "disappointing" are just a few of the words the Toronto Maple Leafs used to describe the downward spiral that took place this season.

While it's unclear as to how and why this team suffered such an ugly late-season demise, one thing is certain: It will take time to digest.

"It sticks with you for a while, definitely," said Leafs captain Dion Phaneuf. "When you take time to look back and reflect, it's something that doesn't go away in a couple of days.

"This is our job. It's a business and we're in the business of results and we didn't get results. We were in a very good spot and we let it slip away and that's the extremely disappointing part of everything."

Things began to unravel following the Olympic Winter Games.

On February 26, the day the NHL schedule resumed, the Leafs were tied with the Montreal Canadiens for third in the Atlantic Division with 70 points.

The Leafs lost their first three games after the break, but went on to win the next three and on March 13 sat second in the Atlantic Division with a three-point lead on both Montreal and Tampa. Things looked good and no one could have predicted that within two weeks the team would be out of the playoff picture.

On March 16, the Washington Capitals defeated Toronto 4-2 in what was the first of an eight-game nose dive. Adding to Toronto's problems was the fact all eight losses came in regulation.

Toronto went on to win just six games following the Olympic break for a record of 6-14-2 down the stretch.

"We started playing some worse hockey the tighter it got and that's not what good teams do," said defenceman Cody Franson. "For some reason we couldn't nail down our defensive structure and system in the neutral zone and in our defensive zone."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

FREE BadGut® Lecture

Ulcerative Colitis

badgut.org
Gastrointestinal Society
Société gastro-intestinale

Learn about symptoms, diagnosis, management strategies, and more at this lecture presented by the GI Society. There will be time to ask questions.

Thursday, April 24, 2014 7:00pm – 8:30pm
Lamplighter Inn & Conference Centre Regency BC Room
591 Wellington Road South, London, Ontario

James C. Gregor, MD, FRCPC
Professor of Medicine, Western University
Gastroenterologist, London Health Sciences Centre

You must register in advance at www.badgut.org/Events
GI Society 1-866-600-4875

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You may not be in control of what happens today but you can control the way you react to it. The more colleagues and loved ones mess you around the more you must strive to not let it get to you.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You may have your suspicions about someone but the planets warn this is probably not the right time to go public with them. You should keep your thoughts to yourself, at least for the time being.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Be careful with your cash because wealth planet Pluto begins one of its retrograde phases today. What does that mean in plain language? It means you could easily make a costly mistake.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Do as you please over the next 24 hours and don't worry too much about the consequences. A day or two from now everyone will be on your side again, so why worry?

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Don't try too hard to stay on top of your workload today. The deadlines you have set yourself are unnecessary — no one will think less of you if you fail to meet them.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
The message of the stars this week is you must not start anything you may not be able to finish. Don't make promises you may not be able to keep. If you don't aim so high you'll look good when you do more.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Disruption of one sort or another is inevitable today. Whatever happens, keep telling yourself it's not as bad as it seems and promise yourself that you will keep your emotions in check.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
This is not a good time to make hasty decisions, not with Pluto, your ruler, beginning one of its retrograde phases. What seems like a good idea today may turn out to be the one thing you should have avoided, so take care.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
There will be times over the next few days when you seem out of your depth but that is not an excuse to give up. If you do you will likely regret it as the planets bring new self-belief and new opportunities.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Pluto, planet of power, turns retrograde in your sign today, which among other things suggests that your grip on certain situations may not be as strong as you thought.

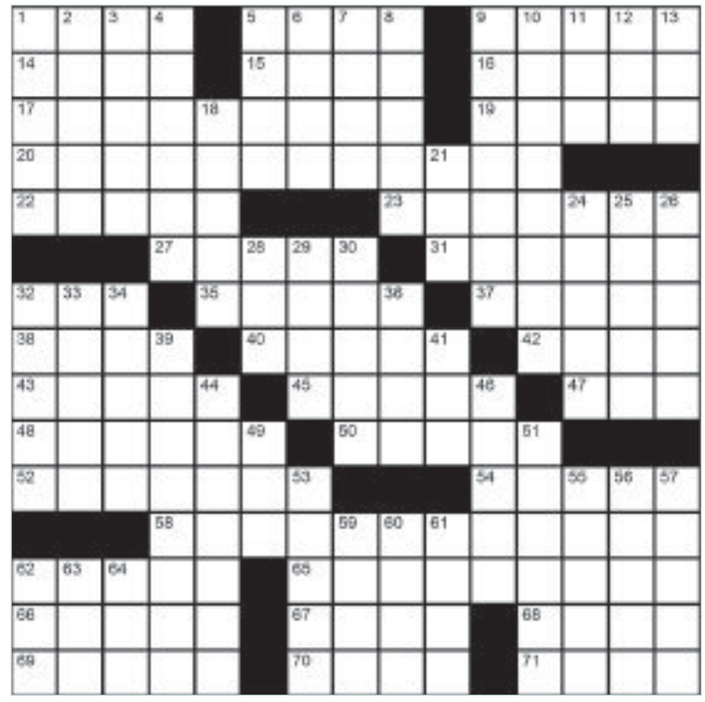
♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Be careful what you decide today because once you have made up your mind about something the planets won't let you change back again.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
No matter how self-reliant a Pisces you may be you must make an effort to work hand-in-hand with other people over the next few days. You will create a lot of useful goodwill. SALLY BROMPTON

Crossword: Canada Across and Down

See today's answers at metronews.ca/answers.

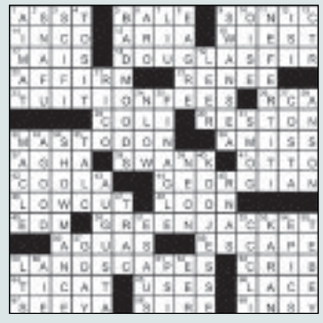
BY KELLY ANN BUCHANAN



Across
1. Greatest extent
5. Things saved for tax purposes, for short
9. Composed
14. Lab gel
15. Zest
16. Board, like Paul Simon's bus rider Gus: 2 wds.
17. Vancouver-born star of the 1976 to 1983 series at #39-Down: 2 wds.
19. "Melrose Place" star Rob
20. The ___ ___ (Novel by Carol Shields which won the Governor General's Award in 1993)
22. Crowd
23. Dog breed, Nova Scotia Duck-___ Retriever
27. Jeff ___ (Montreal-born philanthropist/entrepreneur who was eBay's first President)
31. Capital city of Niger
32. Corporate executives, e.g.
35. Irish writer's surname, b.1865 - d.1939
37. Embark
38. Basra's country
40. Pastas alternatives
42. Bygone bird
43. Persist
45. Arrives
47. '_' ___ for Ottawa
48. More blood-and-guts-ish
50. Fragrant flower
52. Speaks frankly: 2 wds.
54. Style
58. In 2011, this city was hit hard by an earthquake. Today, it's a stop on Prince William and Kate's royal tour of New Zealand.
62. President between Clinton and Obama ...nicknamed
65. Hamilton nickname: 2 wds.
66. Make hair wavy
67. Eke ___ living
68. Languish
69. One being quoted
70. Geek
71. Pre-plant form

Down
1. Overly tough
2. "_ ___ ___ the gym three times a week..."
3. Toil, States-spelling
4. They're hot
5. Taken back [abbr.]
6. Nero's 152
7. "Bye!"
8. Huff
9. Pop a ___, as per stunt bike riding
10. BC: West Kootenay city in The Rockies
11. Check a box
12. Foot part
13. Nav. rank
18. Strongly smelly
21. Particle
24. Right Said Fred's "___ ___ Sexy"
25. "___ say more?"
26. Greek sandwiches with tzatziki sauce
28. Poet's 'atop'
29. Secular
30. Mil. rank, ___. ___.
32. Horoscope sign
33. Ahead-of-surgery, hip-style
34. "___ bleu!"
36. Half
39. Jack Klugman's medical examiner role show, "___, _._."
41. Quebec seasoning
44. Change form
46. Mr. Baron Cohen
49. Sci-Fi play
51. Bunches
53. Mountaineer's spike
55. "The Lone Ranger" (2013) name
56. Movies: ___ stealer
57. Rip
59. Andrew or Elisabeth
60. 'Four'-meaning prefix
61. Avril's rocker hubby
62. Gladiator's 700
63. Mr. Geller
64. Smidgen

Friday's Crossword

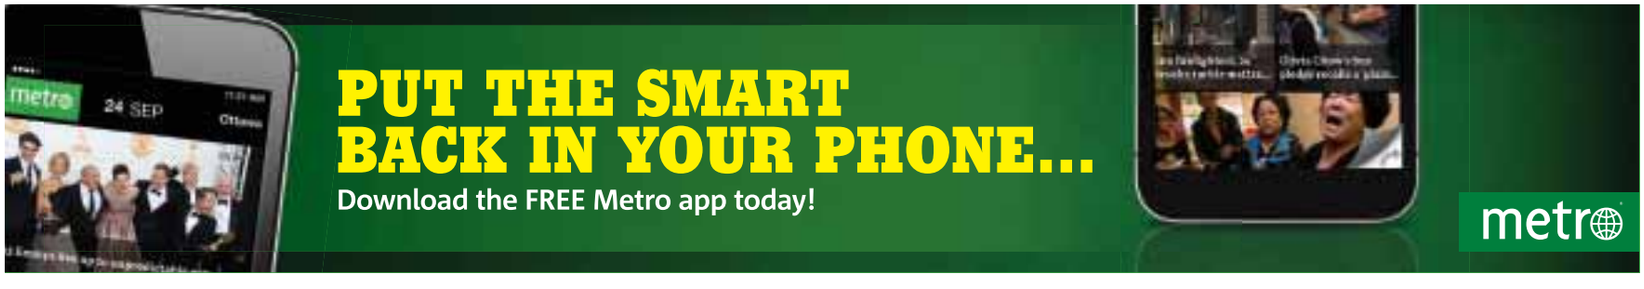


Sudoku

How to play
Fill in the grid, so that every row, every column and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1-9. There is no math involved.

1		6				8		4
	4	9	5		1	3	6
5								2
			8		2
	6			5			1
			9		6
6								5
	5	1	4		7	6	2
8		3				7		1

Friday's Sudoku



BRANDS WE LOVE

which armani are you?

Whether your look is casual cool or sophisticated chic, the Emporio Armani and Giorgio Armani collections have the right style for any occasion.

ultra violet

EMPORIO ARMANI
EA9796 YZK VIOLET BURGUNDY

Burgundy blends to crystalline violet in this round frame with all the right curves

into the blue

EMPORIO ARMANI
9726 ARP AZURE PALLADIUM

Go low profile in a cool blue stainless steel frame with attitude to spare

back in black

GIORGIO ARMANI
GA868 D28 SHINY BLACK

A high gloss, square frame with just a hint of gold shimmer at the temples

mauve on up

GIORGIO ARMANI
GA804 Q61 VIOLET CRYSTAL

Add some feminine flair with this rectangular style in soft mauve

ClearlyContacts.ca

THE BETTER WAY TO BUY EYEWEAR

ONLINE
clearlycontacts.ca/metro

CALL
1-866-414-2326

IN STORE
Toronto & Vancouver